The Corps Cadet, after this had gone on for a little while, felt that here was an opportunity for her to witness for God, and quietly hut firmly declared that she was happier than any one of the party, though they had been to a muste hall and she to a grayer meeting.

After speaking to the company in general, she addressed herseti par-ticularly to the girl who had been ucutarry to the gut who had been scoffing, and warned her that the time would surely come when she would realize her need of the Salva-tion of God.

The girl to whom the Corps Cadet thus spoke died very suddenly only a fortnight later; and from her death bed sent a message to our comrade thanking her for dealing so faith-fully with her in the railway carfully with her in the railway car-riage and stating that her words on that occasion had led her to give herself to God, and that, conse-quently, she was not afraid to meet

The diary is now in the museum at Washington.

Wooden Leg Solves Problem

"Perbaps the queerest thing we ever received here was a wooden leg, and that was sent to us out of spite! There was a woman who kept a boarding house and she had a boarder who was objectionable to boarder who was objectionable to her in some way, so she tried to get rid of him. She did everything she could think of to make that boarder change his quarters, but the boarder sat tight. She told him to go, she tried to make the house uncomfort-able for him in all sorts of ways, but the boarder refused to hudge.

"Finally she hit on a scheme. The boarder had a wooden leg. In an unguarded moment, when he had taken the leg off, she carried it away and promptly called up The Salvation Army and asked the wagon to stop. When the wagon arrived she handed over the wooden leg.

"Soon, of course, the boarder realized his loss and demanded his leg. He was informed by the landlady He was informed by the landledy that his leg was at The Salvation Army Headquarters, and that if he wanted it be would have to go and fetch it himself, but that she would provide a cab to take him.

The boarder realized at last that he was outwitted. He allowed the coachman to help him to the cah, heard the door of his boarding house bang behind him forever, and role to The Salvation Army, mad as a hornet and shouting for his leg. He got his leg and stumped away to find a new hoarding house!

"The Salvation Army Headquarters were turned upside down in the search for the missing teeth, which were finally found intact except for one molar, which had heen hroken off short, and they were promptly returned to the indignant owner."

It is surprising, according to Cap-tain Bransfield, how many things are sent to The Salvation Army hy mistake in this way, and no end of trouble is caused. Here are some of trouble is caused. Here are some of the instances that have occurred in his experience.

A man belongs to a fraternal order and hires a dress suit to go to a banquet. His wife proceeding to clean the house next day, throws the clean the house next day, throws the hox containing the hird suy in with other things intended for The Salvation Army, and the wagon carries it away. The man returns to find the dress suit gone. A tertible scene takes place. The Salvation Army is called up and the dress suit found, carefully laid away for the next minstel show.
